

Guitarist Yuval Ron performs original tunes that transcend the boundaries of any specific musical genre. Inspired by a crossover of progressive and jazz-rock with a host of many other contemporary artists from the fusion, metal and other modern music genres, it is all well blended into an own fresh and distinct musical direction.

YUVAL RON

The music features virtuosic performances of various compelling and colorful compositions, produced on top of a cinematic, orchestral, some say film-like backgrounds, atmospheric soundscapes and various implanted sound effects, drawing the listener into a total, electrifying experience.

The players place a constant emphasis on harmonic richness, rhythmical sophistication and an extensive use of synthesizers, laptops and other electronic instruments. The band brings together a few internationally rising talents of the jazz and progressive music scenes.

"Progressive guitarists such as Yuval Ron are clearly among the 'ruling elite' of modern musicians" – Metal Temple

Somewhere in this Universe, Somebody Hits Drum is prog guitarist YUVAL RON's coming next album.

The crew, featuring MARCO MINNEMANN (drummer for The Aristocrats, Jordan Rudess, Tony Levin, Steven Wilson and Joe Satriani to name a few), ROBERTO BADOGLIO on bass and MATT PAULL on keyboards, is taking off on a mission, to explore the universe through music, hence the album's title.

The album features six beautiful and profound compositions placing a strong emphasis on big, orchestral, film music-like arrangements and production. On top of those, the players display some virtuosic and passionate performance, soloing and improvisation which leave the listener fascinated throughout the extensive pieces, traveling through space with tunes like "Gravitational Lensing", "The Discovery of Phoebe" and "I Believe in Astronauts".

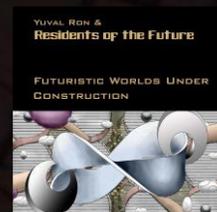

Est. release June 2019, alongside two music videos and a release tour.

"The album is a combination of carefully thought out compositions with improvisations, and I just found myself listening and smiling, gently moving with the beat as I feel under its spell."
– Prog Archives (Residence Of The Future album review).

Touring worldwide, Yuval has performed in some of the major jazz and music festivals and has recorded several albums and live videos with his band.

Alongside, he is a music instructor, professional composer, arranger and music producer.

"Yuval Ron & Residents of the Future give the fusion world something to be proud of. To have young men carrying the torch of the genre so highly, and with so much flavor and flair, one cannot help but be impressed." – Jazzrockworld
